Durango, Colorado

Durango, capital of La Plata County, was laid off as a townsite and settled upon Saturday, September 11, 1880. The survey of lots began Monday, September 13. On the 18th the first money, about $7,000, was accepted and receipts given for lots purchased. The original plat was filed February 24, 1881, by W. A. Bell, trustee for the Durango Town or Trust Company. The Fassbinder addition plat was filed April 28, 1882.

The Denver & Rio Grand Railroad was completed to the town on July 27, 1881.

In 1889, a large part of the hastily built metropolis was destroyed by fire, 125 buildings, including three churches were burned. In 1890 more than $500,000 was spent for rebuilding.

In the autumn of 1880 the Episcopalians organized their church, the first in Durango, altho the Methodist-Episcopal church organized in the Animas valley in 1874, was the first church in the county. Rev. B. F. Carey, elder, preached the first sermon in the Animal valley. Early in the spring of 1881 the Catholic church was organized, followed in June by the Presbyterian church.

The Bank of Durango was established in 1881 by John L. McNeil for Daniels, Brown & Company. In 1885 it purchased the charter of the First National Bank, merged the two, and today is the First National Bank.

La Plata County was taken from the western part of Conejos, and, together with Rio Grande and Hinsdale was organized under an act of the territorial legislature approved February 10, 1874. The county originally included all the territory now included in San Juan, Ouray, Dolores, San Miguel and most of Hinsdale counties.

Howardsville, above Silverton, was the first county seat and center of population. The first county officers were: J. W. Wallace, sheriff; Sam Johns, county judge; John L. Ufford, clerk; B. F. Lovett, treasurer; Dempsey Reese, Richard Carley, Alex Fleming, commissioners. The judicial district was created the same year. Thomas M. Bower was appointed district judge.

The name of the county is derived from the great La Plata chain of mountains, which form part of its boundary. Several counties have been segregated from the original extensive domain. Its area is 1,851 square miles. Its population, 1930 census, was 12,975.

The Baker expedition in 1860, was the first party of white men to explore the San Juan. In December of the same year a party composed of Benjamin H. Eaton, who was elected governor in 1884, D. H. Haywood and wife, Charles L. Hall, Oscar Phelps and wife, Mrs. Nye and daughter, and J. C. Turner, who was elected county sheriff in 1888, left Denver. The party arrived at the new town of Animas City on the east bank of the Animas river opposite Pinkerton Hot Springs, about the middle of March, 1861.

The first American flag unfurled in La Plata County was in June, 1861, when word was received of the outbreak of the Civil war and women made a flag of white goods, red petticoats and blue bonnets and used the tallest pine tree for a flagstaff.

Robert Dwyer in 1873 built a log cabin home on Junction Creek. On May 13, 1874, four men, Root, Ratcliff, Lee Moss and McIntyre found another party working on their claims, designated as La Plata Bar. The men divided the holding. A blacksmith shop was built. This town was called Parrott City. The townsite was surveyed during the summer of 1874. The California Mining District was organized June 4, 1874. John Moss elected recorder. Postoffice established in 1875.

In 1875 the county seat was moved from Howardsville to Silverton by the county clerk without leave or license. On January 31, 1876, the county was divided. Parrott City was made capital of the smaller La Plata county.

The first county officers, at Parrott City were: Major E. N. Cooper, county clerk; Richard Giles, sheriff; Charles Bennett, treasurer; Henry Lee, assessor; H. R. Crosby, county judge; John Moss, John Merritt, J. H. Pinkerton, commissioners.

La Plata County was formally organized and commissioners met July 2, 1876.

In the spring of 1874, Mrs. W. H. Nichols gave birth to a baby boy; on June 5, Mrs. George Webb, enroute to Silverton with her husband, gave birth to a baby girl, the first two white children born in the county.

The first wedding in the county was Frank Williams to a daughter of J. H. Pinkerton, in 1874. The first wedding in Durango was James Luttrell to Mrs. Katherine Wittman, November 27, 1880.

The first lumber sawed in the county was on May 5, 1876; the first fruit trees were planted on the Hermosa in 1877. Domestic and dairy cattle were brought here in 1874.

Durango is the metropolis of the San Juan Basin. From it railroad branch lines extend to Silverton, Mancos, Dolores, Rico, Telluride and Farmington. The main line extends eastward, touching the postoffice towns of Falfa, Oxford, Ignacio, La Boca, Tiffany, Allison, Arboles, Pagosa Junction, Lumberton, Monero, Chama and others eastward to Pueblo, where the main line of the road is reached.

In addition to railway connections stage lines operate passenger and freight carrying busses which make daily trips to and from Gallup, Montezuma valley towns, and Grand Junction. The bus to the latter town suspends service two or three months during the winter period.

A municipal airport is also maintained.

Durango is the supply and distributing point for the San Juan Basin.

Dairying, farming, fruit growing, mining and stock raising are the principal industries.

The altitude of Durango is 6,555. Its climate is ideal. The winters, usually, are not severe.

Tourists wishing to view some of the finest mountain scenery in the world can, by making Durango their headquarters, make daily trips over good roads into the wonderland of beauty.

The streams of the basin are well stocked with the gamest of fish, mountain trout. Wild game, such as elk, deer, bear, mountain lions, bob cats, and smaller varieties abound in the highland fastness.

Animas City, Colorado

Animas City, its southern limits meeting the northern limits of the city of Durango, is an incorporated town, without a postoffice. Mail is received by its population thru Durango, from where it is daily distributed by a rural carrier on R. F. D. No. 1.

The town of Animas City originally was located on the east bank of the Animas river, opposite Pinkerton Hot Springs. It was founded by a party of men and women who left Denver in December, 1860, reaching the San Juan in the middle of the following March.

Just when the removal of the city from its original site occurred, records fail to reveal, but probably about 1874.

The Animas City of today claimed as it first residents Ben F. Eaton, George W. Howard, John C. Turner, Abnah French, Thomas Pollock and wife, S. B. Kellogg and family, D. H. Haywood and family, Nate Nye and family, Dan S. Rogers, Pharris Hubbard, Charles Idle, Charles L Hall and others.

In November, 1881, when the county seat was removed from Parrott City to Durango, Animas City had lost most of its population to the new town to its south. Today, with the automobile for transportation, Animas City is principally a resident town with all the modern conveniences of a city.

PAGOSA SPRINGS COLO.

Pagosa Springs, Colorado

Archuleta county, of which Pagosa Springs is the seat of government, has for its eastern boundary, Conejos county, the main range of the Rocky Mountains. Its southern boundary is formed by the state of New Mexico. On the west it is bounded by La Plata county, and on the north by Hinsdale and Mineral counties. It is rectangular in outline. Its extreme length from east to west is about sixty miles, and its extreme width is thrity-three miles. Its area is 780,000 acres.

When Colorado territory was organized in 1861, the area that now forms Archulet county was included in Conejos county. Archuleta county was organized on April 14, 1885, and was named in honor of J. M. Archuleta, then a prominent citizen of old Conejos county.

The east and southeast section of the county is covered by one of the old Spanish land grants known as the Tierra Amarilla. Until comparatively recently the question of title has done much to retard prospecting.

Some of the greatest hot springs in the world are located at Pagosa, the gateway town to the San Juan basin, a few miles to the westward of Wolf Creek pass. The town is on Highway No. 450 and also reached by a branch line of railway from Pagosa Junction.

The Durango NEWS

P. O. Box 450 Durango, Colorado

MAP OF RICO COLORADO

Rico, Colorado

In the spring of 1879, following the discovery of rich oxidized silver ore on Nigger Baby Hill and the subsequent rush to the district, the townsite of Rico was surveyed and divided into lots. E. A. Robinson was the first justice of the peace. The Dolores News, with its issue on August 21, 1879, was the first newspaper. The first seven issues of the paper were printed in Silverton. It was during the latter part of this year that a postoffice was opened and the name Rico given to the settlement.

Rico is the county seat of Dolores county, and is situated on the Rio Grande Southern railroad 96 miles from Durango. A highway also reaches the town.

The Rico district was, undoubtedly, first visited by Spanish explorers about the year 1800. It was not until 1833 that a party of sixty white trappers under the leadership of William G. Walton, spent the summer of 1833 along the Dolores river and in camp near Trout Lake, about 13 miles northeast of the present town.

Lieutenant Howard and other members of John Baker's expedition into the San Juan, in 1861, prospected along the Dolores river. Five years later Colonel Nash and party from Arizona reached the big bend of the Dolores river, below where the present town of Dolores now stands, and from their camp there explored the river to its source.

Sheldon Shafer and Joseph Fearheiler in July, 1869 prospected the district and located a claim which they recorded as the Pioneer, a name that afterwards became the official designation of the mining district. The claim covered portions of what are now the Shamrock, Smuggler and Riverside claims. Their cabin was built on or very near the site where later the Rico State bank stood. In 1870 R. C. Darling, engaged in survey work, visited the district. His name survives in Darling Ridge, one of the spurs of Expectation mountain. In 1872 Darling revisited the district, and with a few pieces of lumber he had packed up from Santa Fe, formed moulds for adobe bricks which were used to erect a Mexican smelting furnace.

In 1877-78 men prominent in the mining world were attracted to the Pioneer district. Among the men were John Glasgow, Sandy Campbell, David Swickhimer, Senator Jones and John W. Mackay. The Grand View, Rico's first smelter, was built in 1880.

It was through the activities of Swickhimer, Patrick Cain and John Gault from 1881 to 1887 that greatest life was infusted into the Rico district. The Rio Grande Southern railroad reached Rico in 1890.

During the last few years most of the mining properties have been acquired by two or three large corporations, and while the Pioneer or Rico district is one of the oldest in the west, it also is yet one of the most prominent and promises prolific production for many years to come.

Dolores county, of which Rico is the county seat, is bounded on the south by Montezuma county, and on the west by Utah. It is of rectangular outline and has an extreme length, from east to west, of 65 miles and an extreme width of 24 miles. Its area is 667,520 acres. The surface consists of broken tableland, which rises to the summits of the La Plata and San Miguel mountains on the eastern border. The altitude ranges from about 5900 feet in the extreme southwest to about 13,000 feet at the summit of some of the peaks.

The area now included in Dolores county was at first a part of La Plata county and was made a part of Ouray county in 1877. Dolores county as it now exists was created in 1881. The western part of the county is a wonderfully productive agricultural and grazing area. There are 350,000 acres of public domain, 500,000 acres of timber land and 15,000 acres of farming land in the county.

Cortez, Colorado

Cortez was first established as a tent-town in the latter months of the year 1886. The first building was built and occupied on January 17, 1887 by E. H. Cooper, who was appointed the first postmaster of the town by President Benjamin Harrison. F. M. Goodykoontz opened the first boarding house and restaurant, in a tent, on January 3, 1887. School District No. 7 was organized and school first opened on August 1, 1887. Today Cortez is a modern town, the home of 1,100 people. It has fine buildings, residential and business, schools, churches, flour mills and public utilities. A large population resides in the immediate adjoining rural district.

Cortez is the seat of government in Montezuma county, which is in the extreme southwest corner of the state of Colorado, the southern boundary being formed by New Mexico and the western boundary by Utah. It is of irregular recangular outline and has an extremen length, from east to west, of about 50 miles and an extreme width, from north to south, of about 38 miles. Its area is 1,312,640 acres. It is a broken tableland in the south and west and rises rather abruptly to the summits of the La Plata Mountains in the northeast. The altitude ranges from about 5,600 feet in the southeast to nearly 13,000 feet at the summits of some the peaks in the northeast. The county was organized in 1889, was formed from the western part of La Plata county and was named for the famous ruler of the Aztecs.

TOWN OF DOLORES
COLORADO

Dolores, Colorado

Dolores, situated on the Dolores River, is about 12 miles north of Cortez, and is on the Rio Grande Southern Railroad, leading from Durango to Ridgway. It has a population of 557, accredited high school, churches and several public buildings.

The town of Dolores was originally located at the big ben of the river, and was first known as Big Bend. As such it was the capital of Southwestern Cattleland. With the coming of the railroad, in 1891, the town was moved to its present location. Today Dolores is the supply and distributing center for a large area to the westward.

The Dolores valley, in which the town lis located, is almost a counterpart of the Animas Valley, above Durango.

Dolores is 60 miles distance by rail from Durango. It also is reached by a good highway.

TOWN OF MANCOS
COLORADO

Mancos, Colorado

Mancos, 31 miles west of Durango, in the eastern part of Montezuma County, is located on the west bank of the river of the same name, on the Denver & Rio Grande Southern Railroad, and on U. S. Highway No. 450, and is the gateway town to Mesa Verde National Park, 25 miles distant, a magnificent, marvelous, mysterious land of temples and cliff houses, the cradle of western civilization, where people resided centuries before the Christ Child lay a babe in the manger at Bethlehem.

The first civilized visitors to Mancos was a party sent out by Governor Cachupin in 1765. The party was led by Don Juan Maria de Rivera. In 1776, the year of the Declaration of Independence was signed, Escalante and Dominguez, two friars, and 12 companions camped on the Rio Mancos, at or near where the present town now stands. Kit Carson in company with a Captain Lee, in 1831, camped on the Rio Mancos.

Adnah French, a member of the Baker party in 1861, in company with J. C. Dunn, Dempsey Reese, A. Loomis, N. Marsh, David Ring, Wood Dood, and "Old Boston" Graves explored the Rio Mancos and reported a wonderfully fertile valley. On August 1, 1869, Cavin Jackson and a party of 22 men left Prescott, Arizona, to explore southwestern Colorado. He was accompanied by French. This party named Cherry Creek, where it made camp when one of their men was shot. They called their temporary refuge Camp Starvation. In October, 1869, French moved to Mancos to pan for gold.

Captain Moss, when entering the valley in July, 1873, named it Montezuma. In the fall of the same year, Richard Giles and a man named Merritt, erected a crude structure of a house on the present site of Mancos. This was the first residence in the present town, and also thought to be the first in what is now Montezuma County.

In the spring of 1874, Captain Moss returned from California with wagons, agricultural implements, seed, etc., and his companions located ranch claims. There was no considerable improvement until four years later. In the meantime Captain Ross executed a private treaty with Ignacio, chief of the Southern Utes, for the right to mine 36 square miles of country with center at a point where Parrott City then stood. He gave 100 ponies and a number of blankets to the Indians to bind the bargain.

The first actual settlers in what is now Montezuma County were William Wooley and Luis Simons, who located with their families in the spring of 1881. In 1885 it is recorded that there were only 10 white people in the Mancos settlement. In 1885-86 the construction of irrigation canals hastened development of agricultural land.

The Mancos river and valley originate about 27 miles west of Durango. Though not a large stream, it is beautiful, its waters flowing between beautiful borders, coursing through an inviting valley from one-quarter to three-quarters of a mile wide. This valley is the home of a progressive people whose varied industries including farming, fruit growing, poultry, swine, sheep, cattle and horses.

The Mancos section also includes what is known as the Mesa Verde tract which is extensively underlaid with coal. Some gold bearing placers have been discovered on the upper Mancos. Some silver lodes mark locations in the county's portion of the La Plata Mountains.

Mancos is a town of pretty homes; has excellent churches and schools and has accommodations for one and all.

Silverton, Colorado

San Juan County adjoins La Plata County on the north, in the heart of what is known as the San Juan Mining District. This district takes its name from the San Juan Mountains, the principal range in this part of the state. The county is of tringular shape and has an extreme length, from north to south, of 30 miles, and an extreme width, at the base of the triangle, of 25 miles. Its area is 289,920 acres. There are but four smaller counties in Colorado. The surface is extremenly rugged. The altitude ranges from 8,500 feet, at the point where the Animas river crosses the southern boundary to more than 14,000 feet at the summit of some of the peaks in the north.

John C. Fremont's fourth expedition is supposed to have reached a point in the county late in 1848. John Baker's expedition passed thru the region in 1860. Prospectors found pay ore in 1870. Following purchase of the district from Southern Ute Indians in 1873, settlers began to come in. The branch line of railroad extending from Durango reached Silverton in 1882. The county was organized in 1876, from the northern part of La Plata County. Silverton is the county seat. The principal industry is mining and milling.

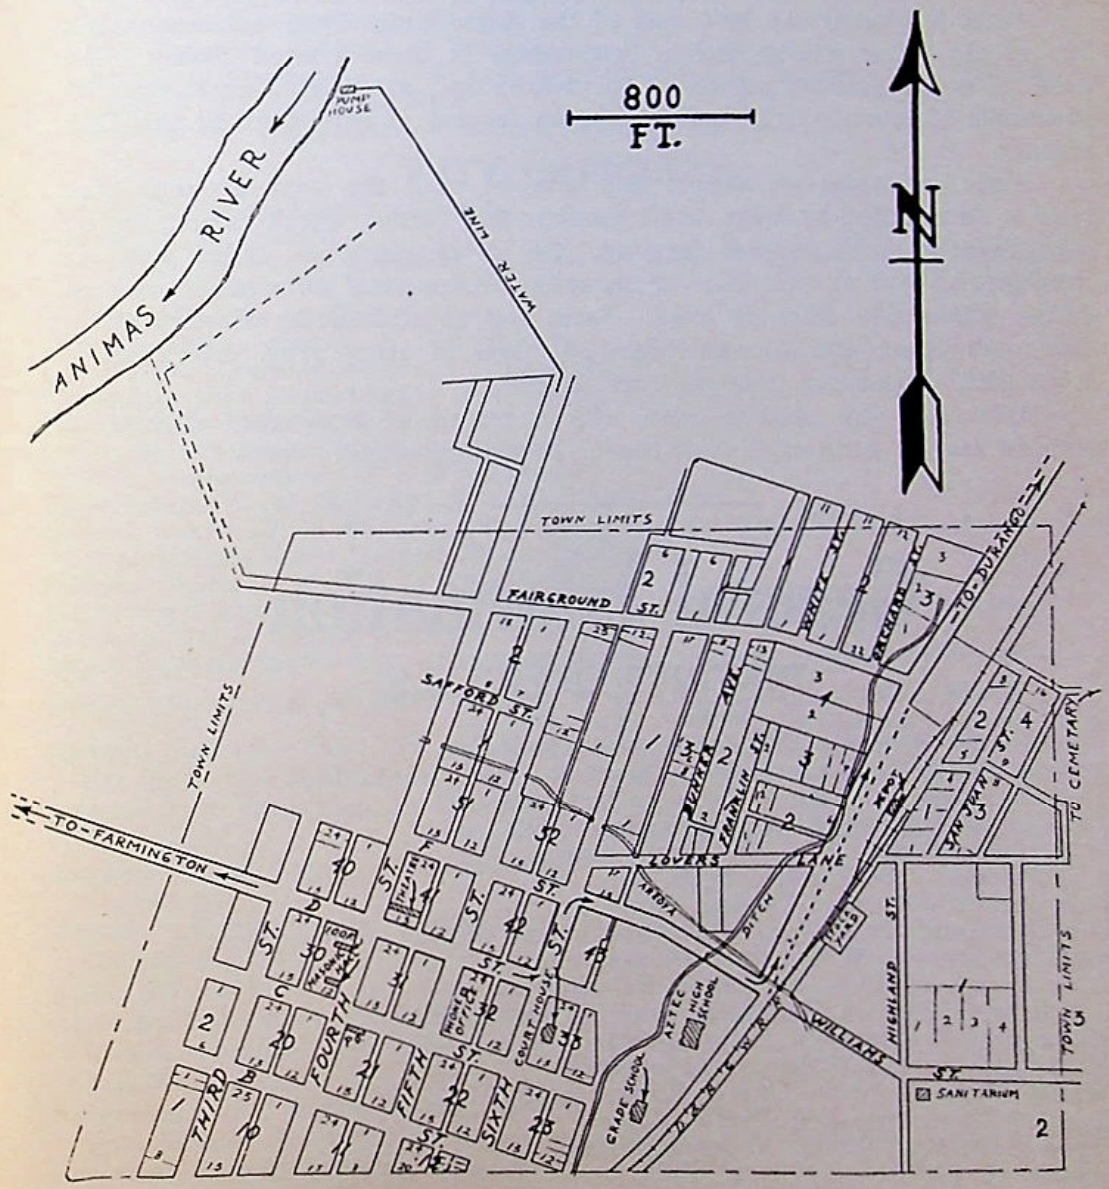
of The Town of
AZTEC, N. M.



Aztec, New Mexico

Aztec is the county seat of San Juan County, the hub of business transactions carried on thruout the county. Is situated 18 miles from La Plata territory, 15 miles from the Blanco territory, six miles from Bloomfield, six miles from Flora Vista and 11 miles from Cedar Hill. It is located on the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad.

Aztec is a town of 800 population with water system, natural gas and 24-hour electric service. Has 40 business establishments, one bank, accredited high school, three churches, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian. Has ice plant modern garages and camp grounds.

Aztec is located one mile east of the Aztec Ruins National Monument, one of the oldest Pueblo Indian settlements in these United States. The ruins offer an unusual attraction to visitors and are visited each year by thousands of tourists. The buildings were erected of sandstone in the 13th century.

Aztec maintains an airport that can be used the year around. The town is surrounded by large truck gardens and farms. Stock raising is the chief industry with general farming. Oil development is under way on structures as near as two miles of the town. Commercial oil wells have been drilled within five miles of town. Aztec has an abundance of vegetables, fruits and water, and the sun shines 345 days of every year. Elevation is 5,686 feet. Population 100 per cent American.

Aztec is a law abiding town with a record of two years without a criminal case or term of district court. It maintains that record.

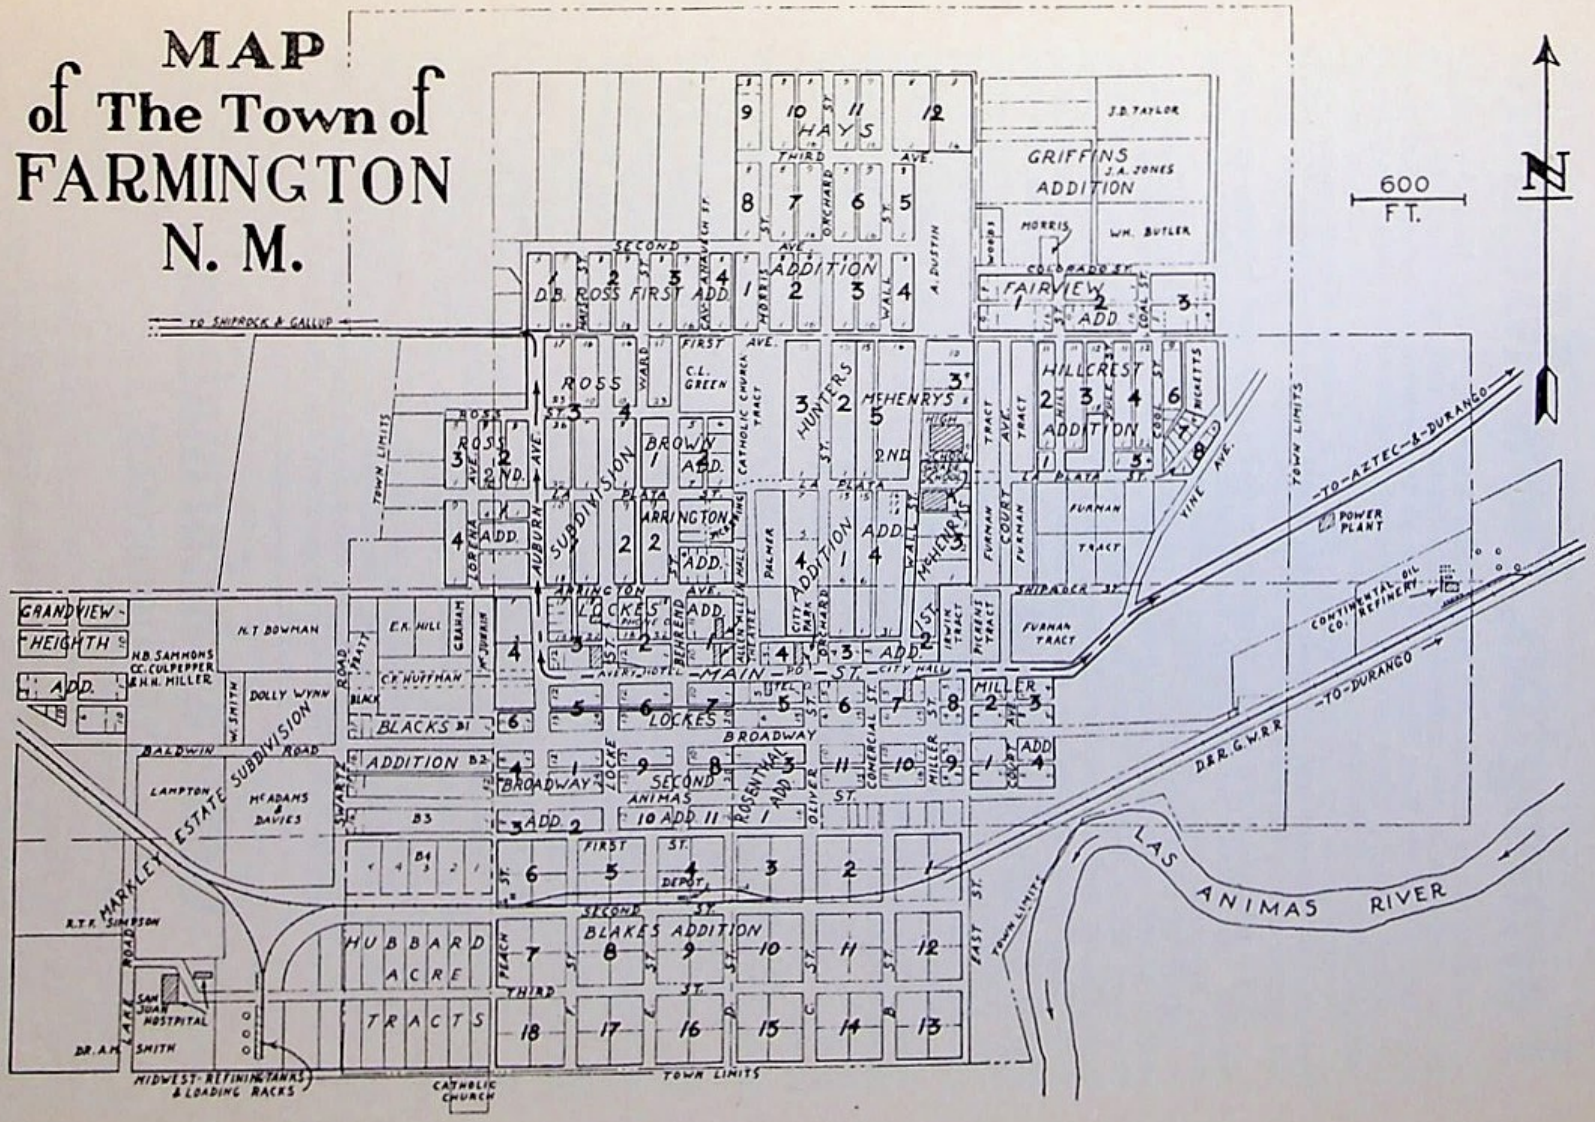
MAP of The Town of FARMINGTON N. M.



Farmington, New Mexico

Farmington is located in a fertile and beautiful valley, in the heart of the San Juan Basin, 50 miles south of Durango, Colorado, and 128 miles northeast of Gallup, New Mexico. It lies at the confluence of the San Juan, Las Animas and La Plata Rivers. These rivers give the valley 7/13 of all surface water in the state.

Farmington is on State Highway No.19, a federal aid graveled road. The shortest distance and the most scenic route between southern California and Denver is via Farmington.

Home gardens flourish in Farmington and fruits and berries grow unexcelled. An abundance of water for irrigation purposes affords luxuliant lawns, beautiful trees and gorgeous flower gardens.

Many of the residences are built on the mesa above the main business section of the town, overlooking the rivers and with a fine view down the San Juan River Valley. From the bluff, south of the river, on clear days mountains in four states: New Mexico, Utah, Arizona and Colorado, may be seen. The view of the valleys, with fields of hay and grain, homes and lawns, flowers and trees, winding rivers running like ribbons sparkling in the sunlight, is both beautiful and inspiring.

A modern, fully accredited high school, a large grade school and a parochial school offer exceptional educational advantages.

Modern convenience in Farmington include natural gas, constant supply of city water, dependable electric service and a sewer system. For the traveler there is a 40-room hotel, with modern service, also up-to-date camp grounds. The sixth oldest bank in the state is another asset to the community. A Western Union Telegraph office furnishes quick communication with the outside.

Farmington is the stock shipping point for the western part of San Juan County. Tons of pinon nuts, gathered by the Navajos are shipped from here.

Farmington is a center for the Navajo Indian blanket trade. Genuine Navajo blankets from the reservation nearby supply this demand. From Farmington the visitor has ready access to the three great prehistoric attractions of the southwest, the ancient ruins at the Aztec National Monument, at Aztec; 15 miles; the Pueblo Bonita ruins, at Chaco Canyon National Monument, 60 miles; both of these in New Mexico, and the Mesa Verde ruins in Colorado, 60 miles.

The farming community around Farmington is world famous for its fine fruit—apples, peaches, pears, apricots, plums, cherries and berries are staple products. Diversified farming is also successfully carried on: alfalfa hay, corn, beans, vegetables, poultry, dairyin, hog raising are the chief crops grown.

San Juan County, New Mexico was the first in the state to prove natural gas and oil in commercial quantities. Farmington is the shipping point for oil of the Midwest Refining Company. The Continental Oil Company, has a modern refinery here which produces gasoline for this section.

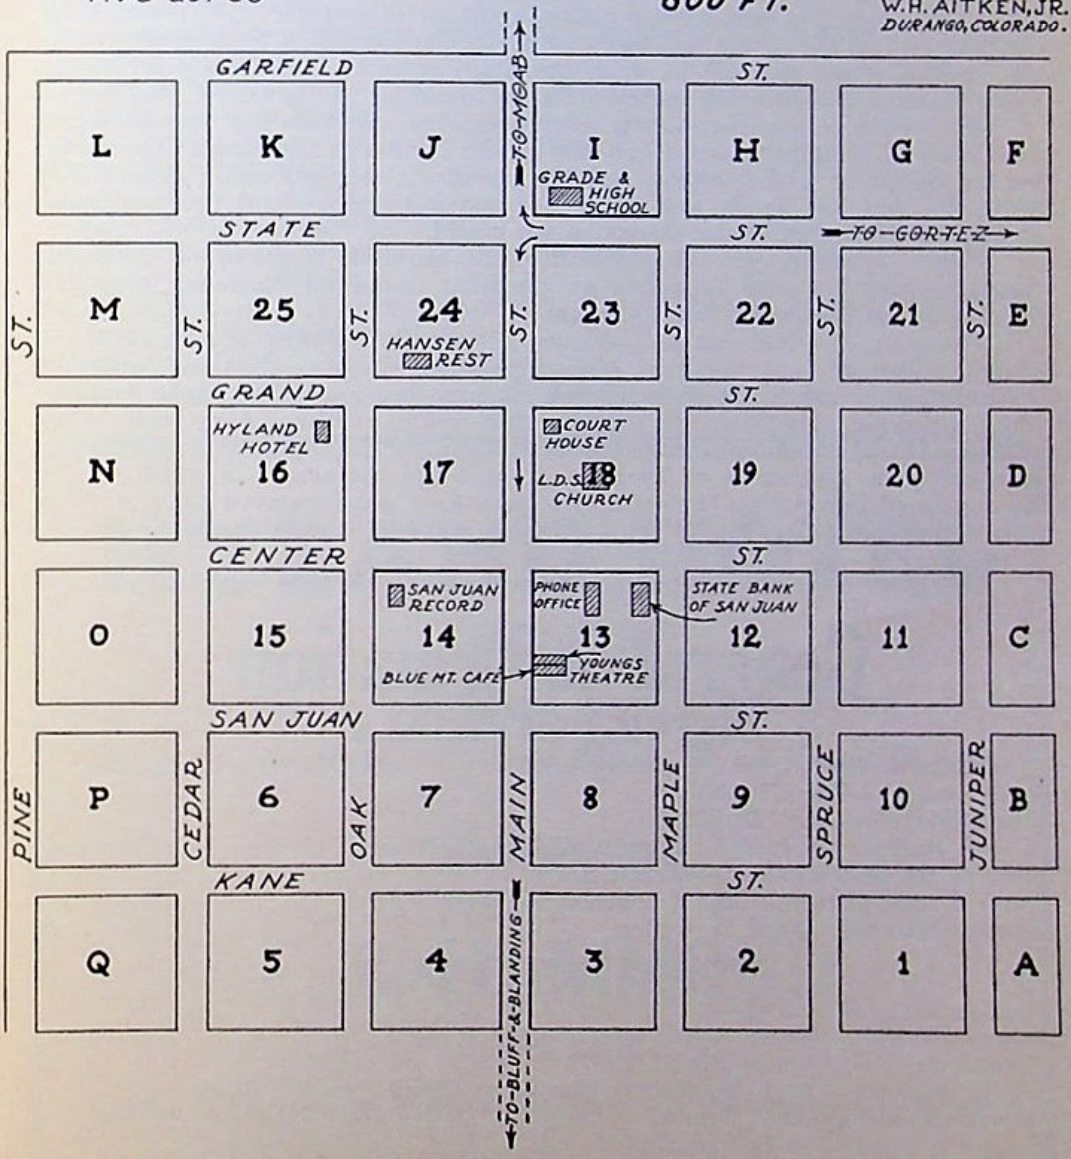
DURANGO, COLORADO.



Monticello, Utah

Monticello, Utah, is the county seat of San Juan County, the largest subdivision of the state, covering an empire of 5,000,000 acres.

The town is located in almost the geographical center of the county, which embraces the southeastern corner of Utah.

The climate is as equable as any part of the country lying within the same degree of latitude. There being no extensive high mountain ranges for the prevailing winds to waft the cold into the valleys from their snowy heights.

The greater part of the county is composed of high plateaus or table lands averaging approximately 7,000 feet in altitude, making these plateaus ideal for non-irrigated farming, the land being principally a brown to reddish sandy loam which is ideal for the retention of moisture.

On these plateaus the average annual precipitation as recorded over a 10-year period is above 17 inches.

In the west central part of the county the Blue Mountains rise some 3,000 feet above the surrounding plains, catching the winter snows and holding them during the spring and early summer, during which time their gradually melting snows run off in small mountain streams, furnishing irrigation water to some 10,000 acres immediately surrounding the town of Monticello.

The towns is the distributing center for the surrounding non-irrigated farm section, comprising some 250,000 acres. It is also the outfitting center for the sightseers who annually visit the country's scenic wonderlands which lie to the west and south, and which are becoming more and more popular as they are becoming better known to the world.

Federal Highway No. 450 passes thru the town. It is gravelled from the Colorado state line, and furnishes an excellent improved highway in an almost unbroken continuity thru the state.

The town was laid out in 1887, by Bishop F. I. Jones of the L. D. S. church, under the supervision of William Adams, who was then in charge of the colonization movement of the church. It was first settled by eight families whose principal occupation during the first years of the colony was stock raising, that changed into intensive farming after an experimental station placed near the settlement of Verdure, six miles to the south, in 1906. From the results of this station the country's fame as a non-irrigated farm section soon spread, resulting in the rapid settlement of the mesa lands by homesteaders.

The town now has a population of approximately 800 people.

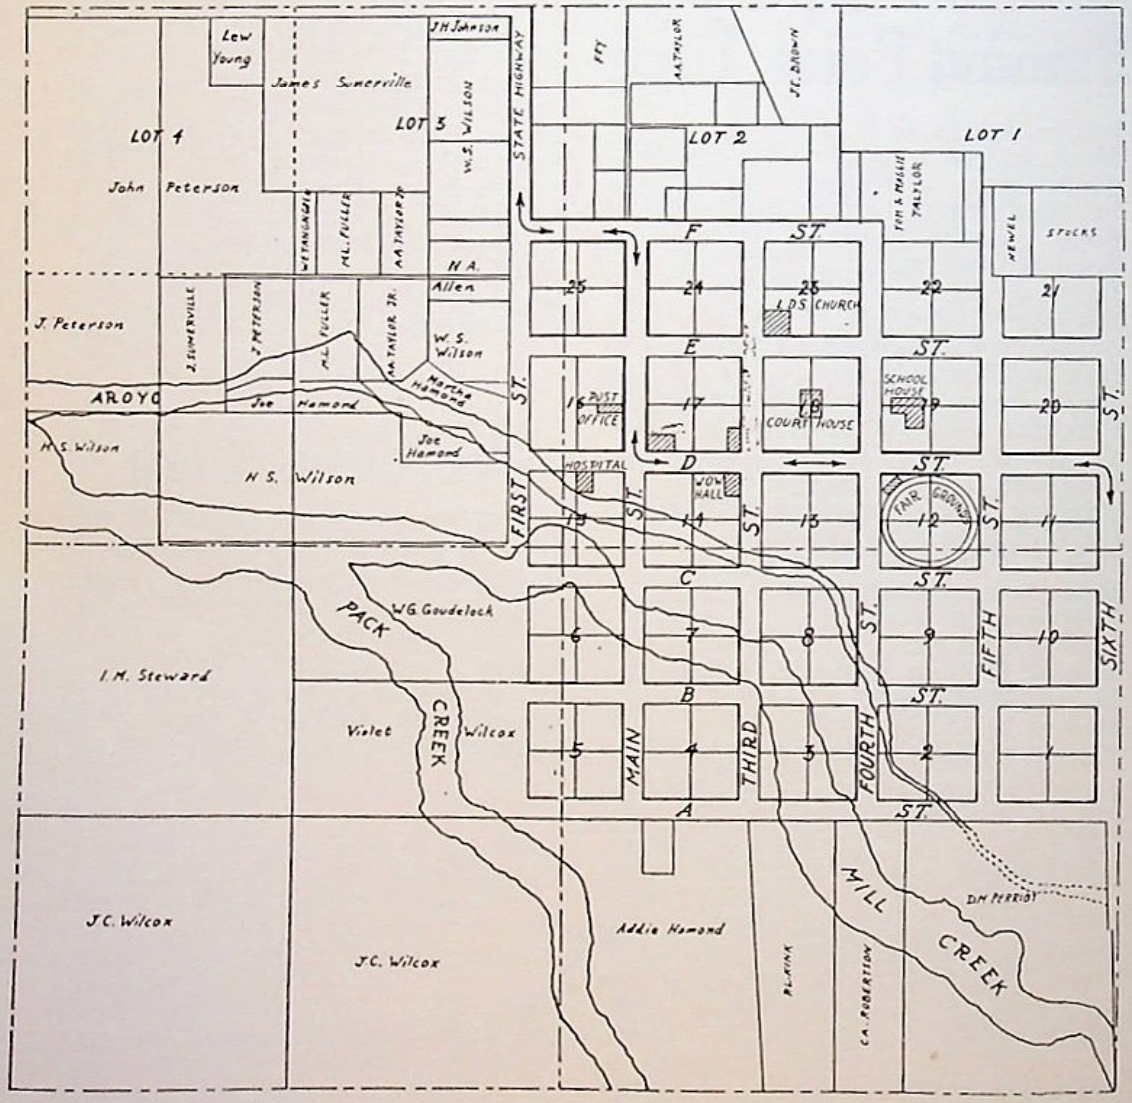
MAP
of The Town of
MOAB, UTAH



Moab, Utah

An attractive, thriving town with a population of 800 or more, located at the western entrance of the La Sal National Forest, thru which courses the Sierra La Sal range of mountains, is on the Colorado river, and is the starting point of many boating expeditions for the exploration of the Grand Canyon, entered several miles below. Hundreds of acres of fertile land are covered with orchards, fruit from the section being famous for its luciousness. In addition to farming and fruit growing, stock raising is an important industry. Thousands of head of cattle are ranged on the La Sal forest area every year.
